SUMMARY

This report demonstrates coverage trends in seven prominent Pakistani newspapers, revealing various topics at national and international level. The indexed data highlights that 28 topics at national and 22 topics at international level were covered in these seven newspaper during the month of December 2024. However, we employed criteria (occurrence of minimum 15 times of a topic) to highlight the major focus of these newspaper. As per this criteria, there was a strong focus on domestic issues, with 15 topics from Pakistan dominating compared to five international topics. Politics emerged as the most-covered subject with 84 entries, highlighting its centrality in public discourse. Education (52 entries) and the economy (50 entries) followed closely, reflecting priorities around societal progress and financial stability. Interestingly, environmental issues garnered 38 entries, surpassing topics like defense (23 entries) and international relations (24 entries), signaling growing sustainability awareness. On the international front, United States of American (41 entries), world politics (40 entries), international relations (30 entries), world security (25 entries) and China (n=15) were the significant areas of focus. The United States topped international coverage with 41 entries, while China received 15. Overall, the coverage comparison (between national and global) coverage emphasizes an inward-looking media narrative, with selective engagement in global affairs primarily tied to Pakistan's interests such as United States, China, and world international relations.

Indexed Newspaper and Their Number of Entries

The report of seven major Pakistani newspapers in English language provides trends and patterns publishing in these selected newspapers (Data attached as Annexure – I). Figure 1 highlighted the indexed newspapers and their corresponding entries include (from highest to lowest) The News (151), Daily Times (146), Business Recorder (131), Pakistan Observer (127), The Express Tribune (125), Dawn (122), and The Nation (92), respectively. The data reveals several key observations. The News has the highest number of entries, with 151, highlighting its extensive coverage or focus on relevant topics. Daily Times and Business Recorder also make substantial contributions, with 146 and 131 entries respectively, reflecting their broad coverage. Newspapers like Dawn, Pakistan Observer, and The Express Tribune exhibit moderate levels of inclusion, each contributing over 120 entries, indicating a balanced representation in the index. The Nation has the lowest number of entries, at 92, which may suggest a narrower thematic focus or lower coverage during the period of indexing.

Overall, this data demonstrates the diversity in content and coverage across these newspapers, offering valuable insights into media trends and public discourse in Pakistan. It serves as a critical tool for further analysis and understanding of the role of print media in the dissemination of information.

Newspaper Coverage at National Level

The indexed newspaper entries provide a comprehensive overview of the topics covered in the Pakistani context, highlighting the diversity of issues addressed across seven major newspapers (Data attached as Annexure – I). Overall, it covers 28 various topics at national level in these seven Pakistani newspapers in English language (Figure 2).

The most prominently covered topics include politics, with 84 entries, and education, with 52 entries. The economy follows closely with 50 entries, underscoring its centrality in public discourse. This indicates that issues of governance, national development, and economic stability are at the forefront of public and media attention. Environmental issues, with 38 entries, and government-related matters, with 37, also received substantial attention, reflecting growing awareness and concern for sustainability and governance. Other notable topics include current issues, with 26 entries, and international relations, with 24 entries. The focus on defense and history, archeology, geography, and travel, each with 23 entries, highlights the importance of national security and cultural heritage. Social issues were addressed in 28 entries, signaling an active engagement with societal challenges. Science and technology (20 entries) and business-related themes, including foreign direct investment (15 entries), reveal a forward-looking emphasis on innovation and economic growth. Certain topics received moderate attention, such as law, legislature, and judiciary (14 entries), and banking and finance (13 entries). Women's rights, terrorism and extremism, and war, peace, and security were each covered in 12 entries, reflecting ongoing challenges and concerns in these areas.

On the other hand, topics such as comparative religions (2 entries) and crimes (4 entries) had minimal representation, which could suggest either limited coverage or less public interest in these areas during the indexing period. Similarly, subjects like ethnicity (8 entries), Islam (6 entries), and human rights (6 entries) saw less coverage compared to other themes, indicating room for deeper exploration. Overall, this indexed data provides valuable insights into the priorities and focus areas of Pakistani newspapers, offering a lens through which national discourse and media emphasis can be analyzed.

Newspaper Coverage at Global Level

The international-level coverage across the indexed newspapers provides a detailed insight into the global focus and priorities reflected in the media. Overall, there are 22 various topics have been covered at global level in these seven Pakistani newspapers in English language (Figure 3).

The most frequently covered topics include the United States (41 entries), world politics (40 entries), and world international relations and foreign policies (30 entries). These figures indicate a strong emphasis on the geopolitical landscape, particularly the role of the U.S. in global affairs and international diplomacy. The significant coverage of world security (25 entries) highlights the importance of peace, stability, and safety in global discourse. India and China also received notable attention, with 14 and 15 entries, respectively, reflecting Pakistan's focus on its immediate neighbors and their political, economic, and strategic dynamics. Topics like the world economy (13 entries) and world financial institutions (12 entries) underline the global interconnectedness of economies and Pakistan's interest in international economic frameworks. Other areas of substantial coverage include world environment protection strategies (11 entries) and world science and technology (10 entries), signaling a growing recognition of sustainability and innovation as global imperatives. Issues like world terrorism and extremism (9 entries) and world conflicts (6 entries) also feature prominently, reflecting ongoing global challenges. Topics with lower frequencies, such as world human rights, NGOs, and IGOs (5 entries), and world nuclear programs, deals, and related treaties (5 entries), suggest limited but significant interest in these specialized areas. Similarly, themes like judicial systems and international courts (1 entry), world arts (1 entry), and world social issues (2 entries) received minimal coverage, which might reflect a niche interest or limited relevance to broader public discourse during the indexing period.

Overall, this data highlights a clear focus on major geopolitical players with a strong connection to Pakistan's interests, while also showing an increasing awareness of global environmental and technological developments. It showcases a subtle understanding of international affairs, with newspapers catering to both global and regional interests.

Major Publishing Trends in Pakistani Newspapers

The combined trends (with minimum frequency of occurrence = 15) from the indexed topics in Pakistani and international contexts reveal significant patterns of media focus and public discourse, highlighting areas of national and global interest. It highlights a notable disparity in focus, with a strong emphasis on domestic issues compared to global ones. Out of the 20 topics meeting the minimum frequency threshold of 15, five pertain to international contexts: United States of America (n=41), world politics (n=40), world international relations and foreign policies (n=30), world security (n=25), and China (n=15). In contrast, the remaining 15 topics are centered on Pakistan, underscoring a predominantly national focus in the indexed newspapers (Figure 3). This discrepancy suggests that while global issues are acknowledged, they are selectively covered, primarily when they intersect with Pakistan's strategic interests. For example, significant attention is given to topics like world international relations and foreign policies, reflecting the country's geopolitical priorities. Similarly, the focus on world security and politics demonstrates an interest in global stability and power dynamics, particularly as they relate to Pakistan's role on the international stage.

In comparison, domestic topics such as politics (84 entries), education (52 entries), and the economy (50 entries) dominate the discourse. These subjects reflect the media's prioritization of governance, development, and societal progress. Other notable areas, like the environment (38 entries), government (37 entries), and social issues (28 entries), further emphasize the focus on addressing pressing national concerns. The limited representation of international topics, juxtaposed with the extensive coverage of domestic ones, suggests a media narrative that is primarily inward-looking, with selective engagement in global matters. This pattern highlights the media's role in addressing immediate national priorities while maintaining an awareness of international developments that have direct implications for Pakistan.

Overall, this comparison underscores the interconnected yet asymmetrical focus of the media, with domestic issues taking precedence over international ones in shaping public discourse and policy awareness.
